

The Pathfinders: Leading Future Facing Accountancy

Participating in a TechPros Thought Leadership interview

TechPros.io is interviewing an exclusive group of C-Level Executives and Technology Innovators from within the UK Accountancy sector. This is part of a thought leadership programme that will have wide press coverage and will also result in a publication that will be shared widely in the industry. Previous participants from similar initiatives have found the experience intellectually stimulating and benefit from the insights shared from across their peer group.

Participation does not cost anything other than 20-30 minutes of your time. We will call you on your preferred phone number, and we work around your availability. If you want to discuss your interview with TechPros.io or our sponsor Modulr before participating, please email interview@techpros.io with the theme you have been invited to interview for and a number to call you.

How technology is enabling forward-facing accountancy

Accountancy firms are increasingly adopting technology to help them provide more forward-facing services. The eBook will feature innovative accountancy firms who, rather than simply preparing accounts for previous periods of time, are innovating with technology to provide predictions and cashflow support. Providing payment services, such as those enabled by Modulr, helps integrate accountancy firms with client operations, giving them leverage to offer more future-facing services.
